INTERESTED IN FAMILY AND CHILD HEALTH?
ENJOY WORKING IN A COLLABORATIVE TEAM ENVIRONMENT?

Join the Guelph Family Health Study

The Guelph Family Health Study is a longitudinal study of families with young children that aims to identify early life risk factors for chronic disease and identify effective family-based strategies to support healthy habits early in life.

WE ARE LOOKING FOR MSC AND PHD STUDENTS WHO
1. are interested in conducting research on family food literacy
2. have a background in nutrition or related health sciences
3. work well independently and within an interdisciplinary team environment

Stipend support is provided.

Students can apply to the graduate program in either the:

DEPARTMENT OF FAMILY RELATIONS & APPLIED NUTRITION
DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN HEALTH & NUTRITIONAL SCIENCES

Contact Jess Haines, Co-Director of the Guelph Family Health Study, to learn more: jhaines@uoguelph.ca